

AFTER SUFFERING ONE YEAR

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Milwaukee, Wis. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman, and I would like to tell the whole world of it. I suffered from female trouble and fearful pains in my back. I had the best doctors and they all decided that I had a tumor in addition to my female trouble, and advised an operation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman and I have no more backache. I hope I can help others by telling them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. EDNA LIME, 833 First St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

BISHOP NILAN'S CONSECRATION

Seventh Bishop of Diocese of Hartford and Successor to the Late Bishop Tierney—Most Elaborate Ceremony

Hartford, April 28.—With all the wealth of ceremony and solemnity of ritual of the Catholic church, the Right Reverend John Joseph Nilan, D. D., was consecrated the seventh bishop of the diocese of Hartford, in St. Joseph's cathedral today. The consecrator was the Most Reverend William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston.

The cathedral church was filled long before the ceremonies began. The corps of ushers, in charge of Edward P. Cahill, was kept busy seating the congregation. Admission was by ticket. Seats were reserved near the altar for guests and officials, and others who were specially invited to be present.

Consecration Ceremonies.
The bishop-elect and the senior and junior assistant bishops rose, the former without his biretta and the latter without their mitres. The senior assistant, addressing the consecrator, Archbishop O'Connell, in Latin, stated that the church requested the promotion of Father Nilan to the episcopate and asked the archbishop to promote him. The questions and answers all in Latin, were as follows:

"Most reverend father, our holy mother, the Catholic church, asks that you promote this priest here present to the burden of the episcopate."
"Deo gratias." (Thanks be to God.)

Oath Administered.
The oath was then administered to Bishop-elect Nilan by the archbishop.

When the ceremonies were ended Bishop Nilan, wearing the miter and carrying the crozier, the insignia of the episcopal office, walked slowly down the center aisle of the church imparting his blessing to the congregation. He was accompanied by Bishops Walsh and Feehan and preceded by Father McAuliffe.

First Office After Elevation.
Hartford, Conn., April 28.—Bishop

John Joseph Nilan of the diocese of Hartford sung solemn vespers at St. Joseph's cathedral this evening, at his first office after elevation to the episcopate.

700 Priests Present.
His first act after his consecration earlier in the day was to bestow upon his mother his blessing, an act of filial love. The ceremony of consecration of the new bishop was probably the most elaborate ever witnessed in the ecclesiastical history of the state. Today's consecration was a similar service of consecration, when the late Bishop Tierney was placed upon the bishop's throne sixteen years ago. Today's consecration filled the seating capacity of the majestic cathedral. It included many bishops of dioceses in the eastern part of the country, papal representatives from the various orders of the religious orders, priests of the diocese numbering fully 700, laity who were there by invitation, Gov. Weeks and his secretary, Mr. Goodwin, of the Connecticut state; Mayor Smith, and many municipal officers of the city, and a considerable body of non-Catholics.

Brilliant Spectacle.
The consecrator was the Most Reverend Archbishop William H. O'Connell of Boston, with Bishops Feehan and Walsh as assistants. The sublimity of the service, even apart from the text, which was taken from the ancient canons of the church through many centuries, was manifested in the music of the mass, in which a choir of fully 700 priests took part, assisted by the choir and the students from St. Thomas' seminary. As a spectacle it was brilliant almost beyond description.

Service Consumed Three Hours.
The service took three hours, and throughout this period the vast gathering was held in almost impressive silence by the beautiful nature of the mass.

Bishop Nilan, having assumed his episcopal duties, will find a large number of diocesan priests awaiting his disposal, and both clergy and communicants will await with interest the filling of nearly a score of vacant pastorates.

THE GYPSY MOTH.

How State's Experts are Fighting the Pest.

The experts of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station have finished their campaign against the gypsy moth nests at Wallingford, and now begin a new campaign against the worms of the moth which at this time of the year are hatching. In the course of their search extending over several weeks between 5,000 and 9,000 nests of the moth have been found and destroyed. In every case thus far the nests have been found on or among the shade trees or non-commercial orchards of the town, though in some cases they were found in queer positions, including some upon a wasp's nest and another upon a clothes post.

Aided by scouts of the federal service the search has been pushed for several miles around Wallingford but no nests have been found in the woods. Scouts have also visited several other towns of the state where there have been reports of nests but none have been found.

Charles Bloomer Had Money.

The funeral of Charles Bloomer, a suicide at Westport, Thursday last, was held Saturday at his home in Falls Village and was largely attended. The suicide was due to melancholia following illness with grip from which he did not readily recover and for which he was at the sanatorium at Westport for treatment. It was found after his death that he had plenty of money for all his needs, about $100 in cash, a bank deposit of about $500 and bonds worth $1,000.

Closed Cars for Stormy Days.

The residents of Waterbury will not be required to ride in open trolley cars on stormy days this summer, at least for no longer time than it takes to get the box cars from the store barn, where they are kept in commission all summer for just this purpose and are utilized on all inclement days.

Child Drowned.

While playing that he was fishing in a stream near the Westville paper mill Wednesday morning, Stanley S. Manickovsky, a three year old boy, of 1205 Whalley avenue, slipped and fell into the stream. The child's mother was near at hand but she was unable to rescue the child and it was drowned.

My Corns Don't Hurt a Bit

Tired, Ailing, Swollen, Smelly, Sweaty Feet, Corns, Callouses and Bunions, TIZ Cures Right Off.

Say good-bye to your corns the very first time you use TIZ. You will never know you have a corn, bunion or callous, or sweaty, tired, swollen, aching feet any more. It's just wonderful the way the pain vanishes. Rub the corn with TIZ. It's not like anything else for the purpose you ever heard of. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous substances which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely close up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. It works right off. You will feel better the very first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with TIZ. It is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

POST OFFICE SURPLUS.

It Swells Deposit of Bridgeport Office to Nearly Half a Million.

The receipts of the Bridgeport post office, which is surplus depository for the 401 postoffices in the state, was $429,627.01 for the three months ending April 1. Not all of the postoffices in the state have surpluses, but whether it is a cent or several thousand dollars, after defraying its own expenses, the excess receipts of each office must be sent to the Bridgeport office, where Postmaster Marigold pays off the rural free delivery carriers in the state, as well as a large number of railway mail clerks.

No money order business is included. The quarters where the Bridgeport office has had since it became a depository for the other offices.

"Hold the Fort."

The late Major General Samuel G. French of the confederate army, whose death is announced at the great age of 88, figured in one of the most striking episodes of the civil war greatly to his own disadvantage. It was Gen. French who, in a bold dash at Sherman's magazine of stores at Altoona, ran up against the late Gen. John M. Corse and was badly worsted. His defeat by an inferior force would have been humiliating in itself, but Gen. French made it more so by his peremptory demand for the surrender of the garrison within "five minutes" or to avert a "needless effusion of blood."

Gen. Corse responded that he was ready for the "needless effusion of blood" whenever it was agreeable to Gen. French. Considering the forces engaged, there followed great effusion of blood, but it was not "needless," since Corse's defense and the repulse and rout of the confederates saved 1,000,000 bread rations and other stores, the loss of which would have seriously embarrassed Sherman. In the course of the preliminary sparring for positions, there was an exchange of signals between Altoona and Sherman's headquarters which has since been elaborated and embroidered as the "Hold the Fort" legend, song and story, the incident being the germ of one of the most famous hymns of the age.

Bostonians will remember the late Gen. Corse, as once posted here, but probably the name of the bombastic confederate commander had been covered by the oblivion of defeat, except to those who study the military correspondence of the period. Gen. French was a northern man by birth, but he "married south." There were more confederate generals native of the north than we like to think, and some of them could not plead even the excuse of domestic influence for turning their arms against their mother states.—Boston Transcript.

Has Stayed in Jail 11 Years.

Rather than pay a judgment rendered against him for $1,500 Alfred W. Jones has remained in the Strafford County jail for 11 years. He is there today with 11 years' growth of beard hanging from his chin. He declares he will die there.

This man has refused to take the poor debtor's oath, even if he were allowed to do so, because he says that would be tantamount to an acknowledgment of his debt.

Suit was brought against him for the alleged abuse of Arthur A. Cripps, a wall, whom he raised. Damages were awarded to young Cripps amounting to $1,500. Jones refused to pay the amount and it is said he made over his property to his wife before the suit, thus barring him from the right to take the oath that would free him.

Now the sum charged against him has swelled to about $3,000 because the state has bill for board at $2.50 a week since his incarceration.

Jones is known as "the Hon of the Tenebrife." He is 61 years old and a giant in stature.—Dover (N. H.) Special.

Judge Brewer, "Cigarmaker."

An incident which Judge Brewer enjoyed greatly occurred in the old Copeland hotel at Topeka. "I arrived in Topeka," said Brewer, in telling the story, "and went to the Copeland. As I entered the office I passed the cigar stand and noticed several pictures of myself on 'cigar box lids,' and above them the words, 'Our Judge.' After I registered the clerk called a small boy, very black, to carry my satchel to my room, and I accompanied him. He looked me over from head to foot and before we had walked very far, stopped and addressed me:

PENSION BILL.

One Providing for Material Increase Reported to House.

A pension bill sweeping provisions under which all survivors, volunteer officers of the United States army who served six months or more would receive retired pay, according to length of service, and all honorably discharged enlisted men over 70 years of age and suffering a certain degree of disability would receive a straight pension of $30 per month, has been reported to the House at Washington by Representative Prince of Illinois, from the committee on military affairs.

In recommending the measure, the committee report said that "although the volunteer troops formed 98 per cent. of the armies of the United States and achieved 98 per cent. of the historic results," the regular officers have received all the honors and rewards of the government, and the volunteer officers nothing.

No officer who served more than six months would receive less than $400 per annum and no officer may receive more than two-thirds of the present pay of a captain of the regular army.

A private soldier over 70 years of age will receive the $30 per month, providing he served more than 90 days and his physical disability, (not necessarily of service origin) is such as to "require the frequent and periodical care and attention of another person."

The report of the committee includes an estimate from the secretary of the interior, which fixes the cost of the first year's operation of the present law at $9,564,012.

Fear of Death.

Curiously enough, too, as age comes apace and the inevitable draws nearer, fear is not discernible in the conduct or attitude of the average man, if one may judge of his interest in what goes on about him, his cheerfulness and his serene outlook on the world—a cheerfulness and serenity that are not all of religious origin. It was a wise Providence that hid the hour of the coming of the dark angel from the knowledge of human creatures, thus leaving always the thought that it is not today, but at some uncertain and therefore not to be dreaded time in the future. Even with invalids who know their days are numbered a kindly power miraculously softens their natural dread and enables them to go down in seemly dignity and self-control into the valley of the shadow.

It is the belief, too, of physicians and others who have witnessed many deaths that in a vast majority of cases the passing mortal meets this natural process as he meets sleep with his mind so dulled or so preoccupied that he is cleared—that all fear of death is lost and the end of life is like the end of a peaceful day.—Indianapolis Star.

A Warning to Naggers.

Let the wife who is continually complaining at her husband because he isn't earning enough to make it possible for her to dress as well as the lady next door have a care. Let a word of advice be whispered to the woman who in the habit of blaming fault with her husband because he says "them kind" or eats with his knife.

Also let a gentle hint be passed along to the man who has become addicted to the habit of scolding every time he is asked to hook his wife's waist; and to the man who never misses an opportunity to accuse his wife of extravagance merely because she buys enough hair to qualify as a waitress let a solemn warning be sounded.

Justice Mills, of the Supreme court of New York, has ruled that nagging constitutes good ground for divorce and, accordingly, Mrs. Daisy Green, of Yonkers, has secured an annulment of the contract which bound her to Albert, who found fault with her manner of housekeeping and her devotion to her relatives.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cottolene Is Not a Substitute for Anything

No animal product, such as hog lard, ever has afforded, or ever can afford a satisfaction to compare with Cottolene. It is far superior to lard because it contains no hog fat, and its purity is unquestioned. It is more economical than butter for shortening and frying because, being richer, one-third less is required.

Cottolene is made from cottonseed oil, a fluid extracted from the seed of purest cotton. From Cottonfield to Kitchen—human hands never touch the oil from which Cottolene is made.

Pies, doughnuts and cakes cooked with Cottolene can be fearlessly enjoyed by the most determined dyspeptic, for Cottolene makes food digestible as well as palatable.

There is no substitute for Cottolene, because there is no shortening as good as Cottolene. It is pure, clean, neutral in taste and flavor, and absolutely the purest and most healthful frying and shortening medium.

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottolene a fair test.

Never Sold in Bulk Cottolene is packed in pails with an air-tight top to keep it clean, fresh and wholesome, and prevent it from catching dust and absorbing disagreeable odors, such as fish, oil, etc.
